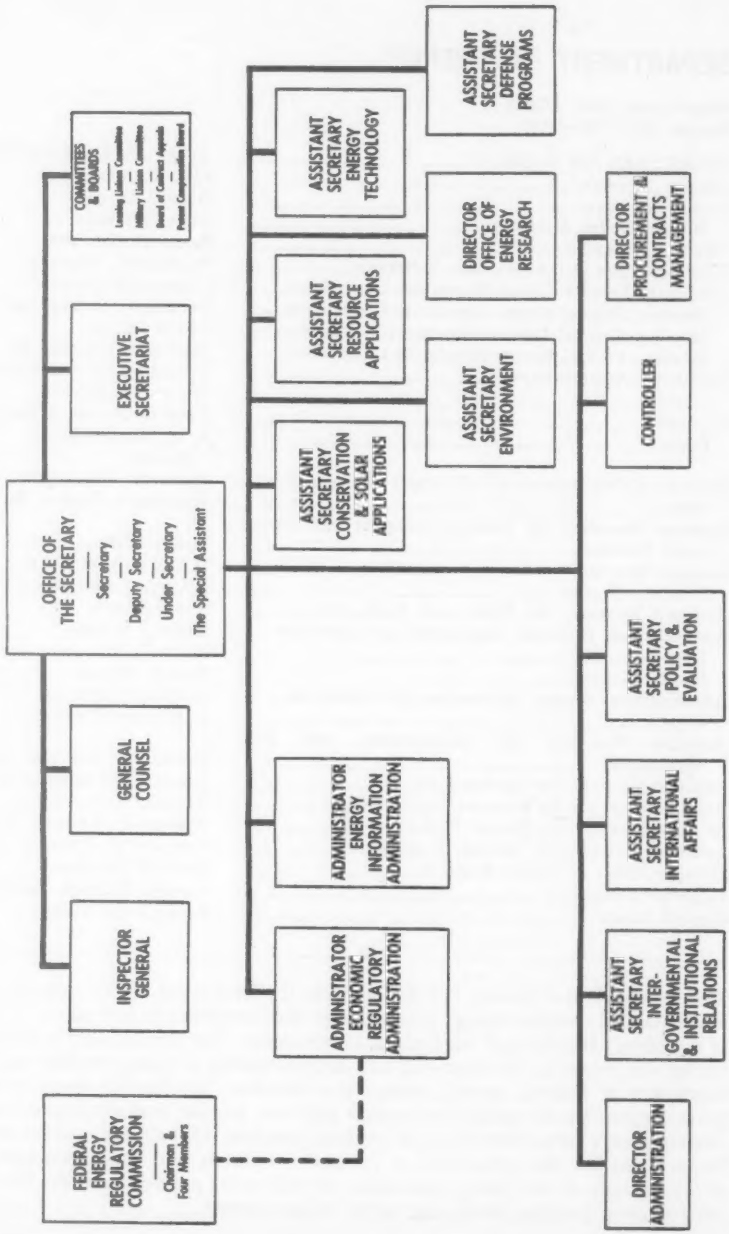
The Department of Energy (DOE) provides the framework for a comprehensive and balanced national energy plan through the coordination and administration of the energy functions of the Federal Government. The Department is responsible for the research, development, and demonstration of energy technology; the marketing of Federal power; energy conservation; the nuclear weapons program; regulation of energy production and use; pricing and allocation; and a central energy data collection and analysis program. Of primary concern to the Department are the promotion of consumer interests and the encouragement of competition in the energy industries, as well as the protection of the Nation's environment and the health and safety of its citizens.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY



The Department of Energy was established by the Department of Energy Organization Act, approved August 4, 1977 (91 Stat. 569; 42 U.S.C. 7131), and effective October 1, 1977, pursuant to Executive Order 12009 of September 13, 1977. The act consolidated the major Federal energy functions into one Cabinet-level Department, transferring to DOE all the responsibilities of the Energy Research and Development Administration; the Federal Energy Administration; the Federal Power Commission; and the Alaska, Bonneville, Southeastern, and Southwestern Power Administrations, formerly components of the Department of the Interior, as well as the power marketing functions of the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Reclamation. Also transferred to DOE were certain functions of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Departments of Commerce, Housing and Urban Development, the Navy, and the Interior.

The Secretary, Deputy Secretary, and Under Secretary are the three principal officers of the Department. They are responsible for the overall planning, direction, and control of departmental activities. Supporting DOE in matters of Department-wide scope are crosscutting staff offices, including the offices of the Assistant Secretaries for Policy and Evaluation, Intergovernmental and Institutional Relations, and International Affairs; the General Counsel; the Controller; the Inspector General; the Director of Administration; and the Director of Procurement and Contracts Management.

Programs requiring large budget outlays are the responsibility of the Director of Energy Research and the five program Assistant Secretaries (Energy Technology, Resource Applications, Conservation and Solar Applications, Environment, and Defense Programs).

The Department's organization also includes the Economic Regulatory Administration, the Energy Information Administration, and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which is an independent regulatory organization within the Department.

In addition to headquarters' components, the Department has an extensive field structure which plays an integral part in the implementation and management of departmental projects and programs.

Office of the Secretary

SECRETARY

The Secretary of Energy directs and supervises the administration of the Department, decides major energy policy issues, and acts as the principal energy adviser to the President. The Secretary is the principal spokesman for the Department.

DEPUTY SECRETARY

The Deputy Secretary assists the Secretary in representing the Department before Congress and the public and supervises administrative and general support functions of Department-wide scope. The Deputy Secretary also has primary responsibility for overseeing the Economic Regulatory Administration and the Energy Information Administration.

UNDER SECRETARY

The Under Secretary assists the Secretary in overall departmental program management and specifically oversees DOE programs requiring major budget outlays, including conservation and solar applications, energy research, energy technology, resource applications, environment, and defense programs. The Under Secretary also assists the Deputy Secretary in administrative matters of Department-wide scope.

SPECIAL ASSISTANT

The Special Assistant, an aide to the Secretary, Deputy Secretary, and Under Secretary, is the liaison officer with the White House and performs special projects as assigned.

DIRECTOR, EXECUTIVE SECRETARIAT

The Director, Office of the Executive Secretariat ensures the necessary coordination and follow-up of the Secretary's decisions and also provides current, accurate, and complete communication of Secretarial decisions.

Staff Offices

GENERAL COUNSEL

The Office of the General Counsel provides legal counsel to components of the Department, except the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. These services include counsel on legislative activities, litigation, advice on international cooperation agreements and projects, management of the Department's patent program, and assistance as required in general administrative matters.

POLICY AND EVALUATION

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy and Evaluation formulates and recommends the overall national energy policy, coordinates the analysis and evaluation of policies and programs, conducts a continual assessment of the Nation's energy situation, and ensures that all DOE policies and programs promote competition in the energy industry and that consumer impact is considered in decisionmaking. This Office, in conjunction with the Office of the Controller, provides staff support to the Department's formal system for policy and program planning.

The Office develops legislative proposals to support policy objectives and reviews program and management plans and budgets to ensure integration of new policy proposals. The Office also will prepare the Department's annual report to the President and a proposed biennial National Energy Policy Plan to be transmitted by the President to the Congress.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL AND INSTITUTIONAL RELATIONS

The major outreach and consumer affairs coordination functions of DOE are the responsibility of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Intergovernmental and Institutional Relations. These functions are designed to ensure that individuals and groups outside the Department have a central point of contact with the Department and that their views and interests are communicated to policymaking and program decisionmaking components within the Department. Specifically, the Office oversees and maintains DOE relations with Congress, the news media, States, regional and local agencies, private institutions, and consumer interests.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for International Affairs is responsible for developing, managing, and directing programs and activities related to the international aspects of overall energy policy. The Office ensures that U.S. international energy policies and programs conform with national goals, legislation, and treaty obligations and assists the Secretary in providing the President with independent technical advice on international energy negotiations.

The Office assesses world price and supply trends and technological developments and also studies the effects of international actions on the United States energy supply. In addition to supporting U.S. policies on international nuclear nonproliferation and the international fuel cycle, the Office also coordinates cooperative international energy programs and maintains relationships with foreign governments and international organizations.

CONTROLLER

Charged with management of the Department's financial resources, the Office of the Controller also participates in the development of program and management information systems, administers financing studies for loan guarantees, and conducts independent cost estimates for procurement and construction programs and for pricing of DOE services and products. The Office also coordinates the Department's overall authorization/appropriation process.

PROCUREMENT AND CONTRACTS MANAGEMENT

As the office responsible for policy development and advice on procurement, contracts, and other business agreements, the Office of Procurement and Contracts Management negotiates and administers all contracts and grants, cooperative agreements, and loan guarantees at headquarters and oversees them in the field. The Office, headed by the Director of Procurement and Contracts Management, also is responsible for small business and minority business procurement and the management of Federal personal property held by DOE contractors.

ADMINISTRATION

The Directorate of Administration is responsible for organization and management studies, directives, and records and reports management; personnel management and administration programs; Federal manpower resource allocation, reporting, and control; construction support to program officials; contractor-labor relations, wage and benefit administration, and manpower development; automatic data processing planning, policy, management, and operations; and telecommunications policy, management, and operations. Headed by the Director of Administration, the Directorate also develops administrative services policy and provides printing, transportation, travel, space, personal property, and library services to headquarters. The Directorate also processes Freedom of Information and Privacy Act requests.

INSPECTOR GENERAL

The Office of Inspector General coordinates, supervises, and conducts investigations and audits of all DOE internal activities, including those of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, to ensure honesty and efficiency. When necessary, these activities are coordinated with other Federal, State, and local agencies and with nongovernment entities. The Office also recommends corrective actions and identifies and arranges for prosecution of participants in fraud and abuse cases.

Programs

Energy Research

The Office of Energy Research advises the Secretary on the physical and energy research and development programs of the Department, the use of multipurpose laboratories, education, and training for basic and applied research, and financial assistance and budgetary priorities for these activities. The Office also manages the basic energy sciences program, administers DOE programs supporting university researchers, and administers a financial support program for research and development projects not funded elsewhere in the Department.

The Office monitors DOE research, development, and demonstration programs for any gaps or duplication of effort and, in conjunction with the Assistant Secretary for International Affairs, monitors the international exchange of scientific and technical personnel.

Energy Technology

The Assistant Secretary for Energy Technology is responsible for research, development, and technology demonstration in all energy areas, including solar, geothermal, fossil, and nuclear energy. Activities coordinated under the Assistant Secretary for Energy Technology focus primarily on making new energy technologies available for public or private commercial application as early as possible.

Research and development projects involving energy storage, electric energy systems, and improved energy conversion efficiency are assigned to Energy Technology since they are primarily developmental and long term and support other technology development programs. Energy Technology applied research and development programs support specialized projects managed by other DOE program organizations, such as Resource Applications or Conservation and Solar Applications.

Resource Applications

The Assistant Secretary for Resource Applications is responsible for developing, managing, and directing policies and programs to increase domestic supplies of petroleum, natural gas, coal, and uranium; to reduce regulatory and financial constraints to resource development and utilization; and to demonstrate and encourage the commercial use of developed energy supply technologies. The Assistant Secretary manages the national uranium enrichment activities and the departmental energy resource leasing program.

The Assistant Secretary is responsible for the supervision and administration of the Alaska Power Administration, Bonneville Power Administration, Southeastern Power Administration, Southwestern Power Administration, Western Power Administration, the Naval Petroleum Reserves and Oil Shale Reserves, and the Strategic Petroleum Reserves.

Conservation and Solar Applications

The Assistant Secretary for Conservation and Solar Applications is responsible for formulating and directing the Department's conservation and solar commercialization programs. These programs include those designed to improve energy efficiency and system utilization and reduce energy consumption in the transportation industry, public and private buildings, and agricultural and industrial process heating; and preparation of a solar commercialization plan.

Within the Office of Conservation and Solar Applications is the Office of Small Scale Technology, which seeks to utilize fully the services of individual inventors and small business firms.

Environment

The Assistant Secretary for Environment is responsible for ensuring that the implementation of all departmental programs is consistent with environmental and safety laws, regulations, and policies. The Assistant Secretary provides policy guidance for the Secretary to ensure compliance with environmental protection laws and is responsible for reviewing and coordinating all environmental impact statements prepared within the Department. In addition, the Assistant Secretary monitors DOE programs with respect to the health and safety of both workers and the general public.

The Assistant Secretary also conducts environmental and health-related research and development programs, such as studies of energy-related pollutants and their effects on biological systems.

In addition, the Office coordinates the Department's responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (83 Stat. 852; 42 U.S.C. 4321).

Defense Programs

The Assistant Secretary for Defense Programs directs the Nation's nuclear weapons research, development, testing, production, and surveillance program. In addition, the Assistant Secretary coordinates a safeguards and security program to provide accountability and physical protection of special nuclear materials, including research and development for improvements, testing, evaluation, and implementation of safeguards systems.

Additional responsibilities include management of the laser fusion development program, classification and declassification of sensitive nuclear weapons information, analysis and coordination of international activities related to nuclear technology and materials, and support of the Assistant Secretary for International Affairs with respect to nonproliferation controls.

Economic Regulatory Administration

The Economic Regulatory Administration (ERA) administers the Department's regulatory programs, other than those assigned to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. These functions include the oil pricing, allocation, and import programs designed to ensure price stability and equitable supplies of crude oil, petroleum products, and natural gas liquids among a wide range of domestic users.

The Economic Regulatory Administration ensures compliance with existing regulations and carries out new regulatory programs as assigned. ERA also administers other regulatory programs, including conversion of oil and gas-fired utility and industrial facilities to coal, natural gas import/export controls, natural gas curtailment priorities and emergency allocations, regional coordination of electric power system planning and reliability of bulk power supply, and emergency and contingency planning.

On behalf of the Secretary, ERA organizes and manages an active intervention program before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and other Federal and State regulatory agencies in support of departmental policy objectives.

Energy Information Administration

The Energy Information Administration (EIA) is responsible for the timely and accurate collection, processing, and publication of data on energy reserves, the financial status of energy-producing companies, production, demand, consumption, and other areas.

Analyses of data to assist government and nongovernment users in understanding energy trends are also performed. Specifically, analyses are prepared on complex, long-term energy trends and the microeconomic and macroeconomic impacts of energy trends on regional and industrial sectors. Special purpose analyses are prepared involving competition within the energy industries, the capital/financial structure of energy companies, and interfuel substitution. To ensure the validity of regulatory and other energy data, extensive field audits are conducted to determine the accuracy of data contained within the departmental system.

The Energy Information Administration provides data publication and distribution services within DOE, throughout government, and for the public. It is a clearinghouse for general information on energy and coordinates its activities with the Department's Technical Information Center.

Federal Energy Regulatory Commission

An independent, five-member commission within the Department of Energy, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has retained many of the functions of the Federal Power Commission, such as the setting of rates and charges for the transportation and sale of natural gas and for the transmission and sale of electricity and the licensing of hydroelectric power projects. In addition, the authority to establish rates or charges for the transportation of oil by pipeline, as well as the valuation of such pipelines, has been assigned to the Commission from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Field Structure

REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVES

The Secretary will be represented in each of the 10 standard Federal regions by Regional Representatives, whose duties will include speaking for the Secretary in all regional DOE activities; working with the State Governors to establish Regional Energy Advisory Boards; ensuring the effectiveness of regional outreach programs, including Department interaction with business, labor, and consumer groups and their appropriate involvement in DOE decisionmaking; providing feedback on the regional impact of DOE policies and programs; and performing assigned nonregulatory activities in regional planning, conservation, energy resource development, and energy data collection.

The Regional Representatives will report to the Secretary, will be supervised by the Deputy Secretary, and will coordinate their day-to-day activities with the Assistant Secretary for Intergovernmental and Institutional Relations.

REGIONAL REGULATORY PROGRAMS

The Department of Energy's regional allocation and compliance program will be conducted by Directors of Regional Compliance, under the supervision and direction of the Administrator of the Economic Regulatory Administration and with the legal support of the General Counsel's field staff. These programs are separate from the outreach and other activities of the Regional Representatives.

The field activities of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission will be separate from other Department field activities but will have offices colocated with Regional Compliance or other departmental field offices in order to share common administrative support.

OPERATIONS OFFICES AND CONTRACTOR-OPERATED FIELD INSTALLATIONS

The Operations Offices provide a formal link between Department headquarters and the field laboratories and other operating facilities. The primary function of these Offices is to administer contracts and manage programs and projects as assigned from headquarters. Operations Offices, except those primarily concerned with the weapons program and naval reactors, report to the Under Secretary. Day-to-day specific program direction for the Operations Offices is provided by the Assistant Secretaries and the Director of Energy Research.

The Department's contractor-run laboratories and other field installations, except those involved in the weapons program, are controlled by the Director of Energy Research or the Assistant Secretary who is most concerned with each installation's functions. However, because of their multidisciplinary or emerging roles, the Argonne National Laboratory, the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, the Pacific Northwest Laboratory, and the Solar Energy Research Institute initially will be controlled directly by the Under Secretary.

A Field and Laboratory Coordination Council will assist the Under Secretary in overseeing the assignment of program tasks to field facilities.

Approved.

WILLIAM S. HEFFELFINGER,
Director of Administration.
